

Alpha Sigma Nu Increased by 1 Senior, 5 Juniors

By Pete Mastrangelo

Alpha Sigma Nu, the National Jesuit Honor Society, has increased its membership by six students.

One senior and five juniors have been selected. Three of the new members were chosen by the three seniors already in the ASN and who were elected last fall. These seniors are Bill Scholtes (ASN President), Dennis King and Bernie Vondersmith. The names were submitted to the Dean of Studies, Father Galvin, for his approval.

When the President of the college, Father Sellinger, can nominate not more than three additional members. In case of the selection of the ASN members, the new nominees must be in the top 25% of their class.

Out of this academic requirement did not apply to the nominees chosen by the college's President. The overall basis is on loyalty, scholarship and service to the college.

The following will now be seen around campus wearing a white letter with ASN on it:

Senior history major Paul Cash—just completed his soccer career at Loyola as goalie. He is the secretary of the senior class and Young Democrats.

George Belz is a member of the campus activities: the Young Catholics, the Green and Gray Club, and the Dramatic Society. The President of the junior class, Diegelman, is also President of the Academy of Student Orientation. He has membership in the International Relations Club and the S.

GREYHOUND movie reviewer, Garvey, was sophomore class treasurer and has been on the track team.

John Malko is another campus politico being a member of the S. He has also played on the varsity tennis team.

John O'Shea is secretary of the S. and President of the Intercollegiate Council of Maryland. He is sophomore class president and manager of the basketball team.

WINNER . . . John Contolupo, for junior social science rep is announced by Skip Siewierski.

Juniors Choose New Council Rep

By Howard Murray

The Junior Class Social Science majors have elected John Cantalupo as their new representative for the remainder of the 1964-65 academic year.

John Cantalupo defeated John Mesch, Jim Griffin, Mike Sauer, Whalen and Joe Kearney in election to the Council as Social Science Representative.

John succeeds Dick Higdon as Junior Class representative in the Student Council. Dick has served five years as an active member of the Council. In his freshman year served ably as class president. His sophomore and junior year he served as a Council representative. Dick withdrew from the Council because he was "fed up" with the general operating procedure of the Council. He also resigned from the GREYHOUND.

Frosh Elections Set For Dec. 11, 5 Positions Open

By John Kelly

Freshman elections will take place on Friday, December 11, between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The offices open are: president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary and representative at large.

All persons interested in running for these offices should submit their petitions, with 25 signatures, by 3 p.m. today. Father Aloysius C. Galvin, S.J., the Dean of Studies, will interview all candidates between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. today. Any candidate who is not approved by the Dean of Studies may expect to have his name removed from the list of eligible candidates.

On November 25, the candidates will meet in the Student Council office to discuss the regulations and procedures for the elections.

The Campaign will extend from November 30 to December 11. All information concerning the election will be posted on the bulletin board in front of Xavier Lounge.

The Elections Committee of the Student Council states that participation in the political affairs of the school is an integral part of a college education. These elections are an opportunity for the freshman class to present their opinions by their choice of candidates.

Last year very few freshmen ran for office.

Gorman Lecture Presents Famous Dominican Poet

By Tom Ackerman

The Gorman Lecture Series of Loyola College will present Brother Antoninus, who will read a selection of his poems, on Tuesday evening, November 24, at 8 p.m. in Cohn Hall.

Brother Antoninus, born William Everson, was converted to Catholicism in 1949, and he soon entered the Dominican Order. The poet is known for his comments on the San Francisco area. An early influence on his poetry was the work of Robinson Jeffers.

Brother Antoninus has published three books of poetry: "The Residential Years" (1949), a cumulative edition of his poems since the mid-thirties; "The Crooked Lines of God" (1959); and "The Hazards of Holiness."

The poetry of Brother Antoninus has a characteristic intensity and immediacy. Kenneth Rexroth described "The Crooked Lines of God" as a book "... of direct statements, overwhelming in their intensity... of

Madness, Talent, Humor Featured At Loyola Night

By Al Stanek

The annual production of Loyola Night will take place next Wednesday, November 25 at 8:30 p.m.; admission is $1.00.

This evening of merriment is sponsored by the college's Dramatic Society and is an opportunity for all the students to create and produce their own variety show.

Since all of the material presented must come from the students themselves, the success of the evening depends upon their own ingenuity and talent. Every student is welcome to participate.

Father James L. Connor, S.J., moderator of the event, says that humorous monologues and musical acts are as acceptable a form of entertainment for Loyola Night as the skits, which usually comprise most of the show.

In order to guarantee that the acts are humorous and in good taste, all the participants will be given an audition. These auditions will be held by Father Connor in Cohn Hall this Sunday and Monday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

No act may be presented on Loyola Night which has not first been approved in the audition.

After the last presentation, an orchestra will play at an informal mixer for all those who attended Loyola Night.

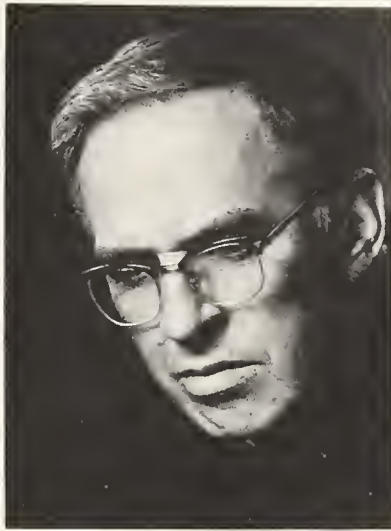

Greyhound Debators In Case Tournament

By Dick Fleming

The Bellarmine Debating Society of Loyola College, represented by sophomores Dick Fleming and Al Seiber, left this morning for Cleveland to participate in the annual Case Institute of Technology Debate Tournament.

The first round of debate will begin at 5:30 p.m. this evening; the second, third, and fourth rounds will be held tomorrow beginning at 9 in the morning.

Over twenty-five schools throughout the nation will participate.

Homotopy Theory Math Club Topic

Steve Grun, a senior math major, will present a lecture on Homotopy Theory on Wednesday, November 25, at 11 a.m., in Maryland Hall, room 507.

Homotopy is a branch of algebraic topology which emphasizes the geometric aspect of topology.

In this lecture Steve promises to show that a donut is topologically equivalent to a coffee cup. Steve confesses, however, that he still has not mastered the art of eating a coffee cup.

Even though the Math Club is having internal problems, it will continue to function.

Engineering Film Next Wednesday

By Mike Riley

Next week, Loyola's Engineering majors will present the second film in the current series, entitled, "Deformation of Continuous Media."

The movie will be shown on Wednesday, November 25, in Maryland Hall, room 400, at 11 a.m. The running time is 35 minutes.

Deformation is a process in which a body of continuous matter, either liquid, solid or gaseous in form, changes its shape.

During deformation, the body is subject to forces, both internal and external. Knowledge of these forces enables the engineer to determine the behavior of the material under a given set of conditions.

The movie presents a primarily mathematical description of the deformation process. It is not as technical as non-science students would imagine.

Green & Grey Sponsors Pep Rally For G.U. Tilt

By Skip Siewierski

The Green and Grey Club of Loyola College will sponsor a pep rally in front of the Student Center on Wednesday, November 25, at 11 p.m.

The purpose of the rally is to introduce and to promote the 1964-65 Loyola College Basketball team.

The basketball squad is scheduled to appear at the rally at 11:15.

Team To Speak

Throughout the program, members of the basketball team will speak briefly to the students. The club expects that Coach Nap Doherty will have a few words to say to the fans on this occasion.

There will be a contingent of girls from Notre Dame College at the rally who will be available for cheering, conversation and decoration.

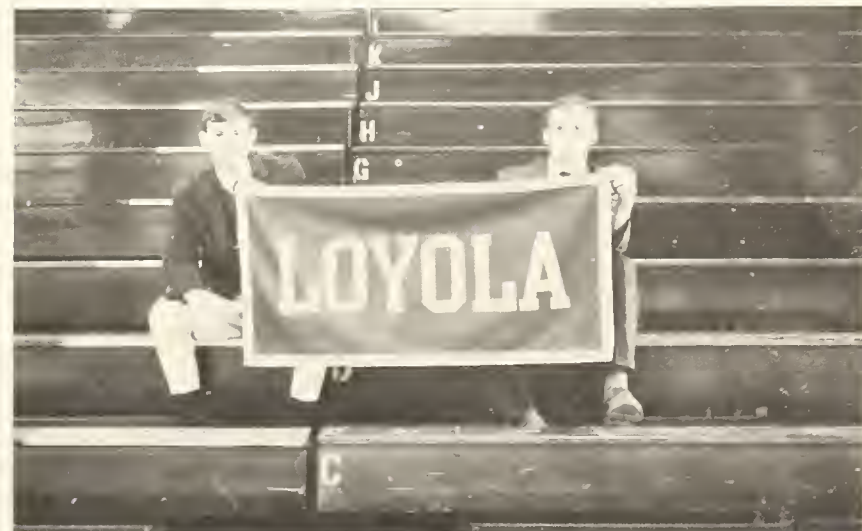

Last April, a great deal of enthusiasm was generated by the campus election campaigns. Coach Doherty expressed hope that there will be as much enthusiasm at the rally next Wednesday.

The basketball team opens its season at home on Tuesday, December 1 against Georgetown University.

Poss Books

Students will be able to obtain their free pass books at this rally. The passes entitle the holder to free admission to all the home games.

Green and Grey members Lew Schaffner, George Belz, Bill Moeller, and Joe Kearney are prominent among those who have organized and will conduct the rally.

RALLY, RALLY . . . everywhere, suggest Gary Atkinson and Paul DeBody, but no one is around to cheer.

Editorial

'Strange As It Seems'

The following is a reprint of an editorial which appeared in the November 4, 1960 issue of The GREYHOUND. It was written by Bob Reiter who was then the Editor-in-Chief.

The same headline appears now as it did four years ago. We are reprinting the entire editorial verbatim:

"Voting day is Tuesday. The nation will go to the polls and cast a vote for either Jack Kennedy or Dick Nixon. What most of the voters do not realize is that a vote for Kennedy or Nixon may actually be a vote for their running mates, Lyndon Johnson or Henry Cabot Lodge. The reason for this is that the election year 1960 brings about the twenty year period."

"Many people have never heard of this. Of those that have, most say that it could only be a coincidence. But whatever the answer, it is one of the most fanatastic sequence of events in the history of our nation. The story is that beginning in 1840 the president who was elected in that year and in every twentieth year thereafter (1860, 1880, 1900, 1920, and 1940) has died while in office. He may not have died in his first term, but nevertheless a vice president came into office as a result of the death of the president elected in that year.

"In 1840 it was William Henry Harrison. The famous 'Tippicanoe and Tyler too' was the campaign slogan. Harrison was in office for just one month. He died of pneumonia and John Tyler became the president. This was the beginning of the strange jinx.

"Abraham Lincoln was the president elected in 1860. It is true that he survived his first four years. But in 1865 he was assassinated and Andrew Johnson took over. This was the second time, but no one recognized the coincidence.

"The election of 1880 found James Garfield elected to the presidency. Four months after his inauguration, Garfield, too, was assassinated and Chester Arthur became the president. This was the third time a president elected in the twenty year period had died in office.

"In 1900 William McKinley was elected, but another assassin saw to it that he did not live to serve his term. His vice president, Theodore Roosevelt became head of the government. President No. 4 had succumbed to the 'twenty year jinx.'

"Warren Harding was elected in 1920. Would death come to this man before he finished serving his term? It did. Calvin Coolidge, Harding's vice president took over the job.

"Franklin Delano Roosevelt was the last of the presidents to die while in office. He was elected in 1940 to his third term. He survived the four year stint, but died in 1945 when just beginning his fourth term. Harry Truman took over.

"This strange coincidence has happened six consecutive times. Could it happen this year? It doesn't seem likely. Both candidates are young and apparently in good health. But anything is possible."

As everyone knows, one year ago this Sunday, November 22, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated allegedly by Lee Harvey Oswald. Oswald in turn was killed by Jack Ruby in the Dallas police station. Strange as it seems the death of President Kenndy while in office fulfills the "twenty year jinx." This makes seven times it has happened. The editor of The GREYHOUND was not the only one who reported on this coincidence in November 1960. Others talked about it also. But few thought it would happen again.

Last year our staff wanted to put out a special issue in honor of the President's death as soon as we heard the news. However, the editor-in-chief at the time was totally against the idea and the plan was squelched. It is now that we make mention of this.

While Senator from Massachusetts, Kennedy spoke to the Alumni Association of Loyola at their annual banquet on Februrary 18, 1958. His nomination to the Presidency at that time was very remote.

But Kennedy did get the nomination and was elected President. His policies were youthful and vigorous. He has made a great impression on our country in hopes of making it a better one. He will never be forgotten.

Observations:

Cafe Plan Passed;
Newstand Approved

By Stuart Schoenfeld

The Student Council met last week on Wednesday, November 11, in Xavier Lounge.

At this meeting the Student Council voted on the proposal by the Academy of Student Orientation concerning the cafeteria situation, on the report on the International Relations Club given by Charlie Schleupner of the Student Activities Committee, and on John Caulfield's motion that a newsstand be set up on campus.

The Student Council voted to go on record supporting the plan of the ASO to keep the cafeteria clean. The ASO had voted to allot $100 from its mixer profits for hiring students to clean the cafeteria tables.

The Student Activities Committee was set up last Spring to facilitate supervision and support of co-curricular activities by the Student Council. Charlie Schleupner, member of the SAC, reported on his investigation of the International Relations Club.

The report recommended an increase in the club's budget from $450 to $600. This increase is needed the report stated, to get a wider range of speakers for the club meetings and to support the trips of IRC delegates to conventions.

John Caulfield moved that, as a service to the day and evening colleges, morning and evening newspapers be made available on campus. Bob Santoni volunteered to call the Sunpapers and the News American and ask them to set up a newsstand in the lobby of the Student Union.

If obtaining a newsstand proves to be an involved process, the Student Council decided to forward the project to the Management Club.

Bill Scholtes reported on the National Conference for Jesuit Student Body Presidents. (Bill was selected to represent Loyola when President of the Student Body Dennis Keating informed the Student Council that he could not attend.)

A detailed report on the conference which Bill Scholtes attended is on page 1, column 5.

The Watchdog?!

Men of Loyola, as Watchdog of your college for these many years, you must realize that we have grown to love our alma mater, and we would like to share a few thoughts on our college with you.

You must understand that our attitude towards Loyola is quite vinistic, and at times we may tend to sound like a Chamber of Commerce pamphlet, but when you have been here as long as we have, you too begin to "feel" your college.

Loyola is truly unique in many ways, and unfortunately most students as they stumble down its sunken primrose path to success, fail to recognize the many little dramas and occurrences that take place daily on our campus.

Where else in the world can a man stand alone with his thoughts in glory in the magnificent sunset as reflected off the roof of the Bell Building? How many times have you stood and watched the com industrious antics of the little squirrels who scurry about college nuts in and around the Bell Building? Never? Well, these are not the things that set Loyola apart from other colleges.

How many college students, other than those at Loyola, can about being able to watch, simultaneously, a lacrosse game, a basketball game, and a track meet, while sitting in the same grand stands? Only at Loyola with its vast athletic complex, and its tremendous emphasis on athletics is this possible.

What other college administration stands behind its students, so closely, giving them the advice and encouragement needed to get them through these difficult years of adulthood? Yes, the Loyola graduates well prepared--if he ever decides to go to college.

Where else can a student go and receive the same car care given Loyola's courteous attendant? Why, if his car is placed in harm's way it will be moved to the safety of a warm garage, where he can receive it for the small fee of 15 dollars.

On the medical side, a great orthopedic surgeon was added to the faculty, at a great expense, and through his recommendation a health menace has been wiped out. Since the ban on tennis shoes was initiated, Loyola has had 34% fewer fallan arches than any other college in the United States. Doesn't this make you feel good inside? Means of thoughtful little services like these, great "institutions" built.

In conclusion we would like to say that Loyola College is the place in the world for a student to pay his debt to society.

'The Luck of Ginger Coffey'

By Tony Rash

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaw star as Mr. and Mrs. J. L. (Ginger) Coffey in "The Luck of Ginger Coffey," now playing at the 5 West Theater.

Not certain that Dublin had offered him adequate means for realizing his true potentialities, Ginger, a "top o' the mornin'" Irishman, took his wife and daughter across the sea to Canada.

Habitual Drifter

Ginger's new life, however, is just a continuation of his old one. He still drifts from job to job, seeking a position commensurate with his talent, an indefinite and unnamed quality. Belief in his talent keeps Ginger optimistic, even though the employment agency is unable to identify any outstanding ability in the man.

Robert Shaw plays this role with exuberance. He parades about town, tipping his hat and flashing his rosy cheeks at passers-by, and returns home after a day of the same to lie to his wife about his brilliant successes. "Don't fret, Ginger," he tells himself, "your luck'll change--tomorrow."

His luck changed--for the worst--and the Coffeys decided to return to Dublin with the little money saved by Vera Coffey, an understanding though increasingly impatient wife. But Ginger spent the money. That was all Vera (Mary Ure) could take. After fifteen years of enduring his husband's unproductive bravado, she and her daughter finally left the Irish word-monger.

Rude Awakening

Ginger was rocked at first but soon continued in his search for proper fulfillment. In order to survive he took a job as a proof-reader for a newspaper. When his daughter, Paula, came back to live with him, however, he had to condescend to accept employment on the side as a delivery man. Slowly the change is taking place. Ginger is beginning to realize that he is a phony. He also realizes that life is meaningless without his wife. Ginger's understanding has not come until he nearly destroys all hope for the future by turning down a promotion in the delivery business for a fictitious promotion from proof-reader to reporter.

"The Luck of Ginger Coffey" appeals to sympathy both for a blustering fool and for the woman whose lot it is to love him. Despite Robert Shaw's masterful portrayal of the lax character, Mary Ure's sensitive acting compels the audience to side with her. Excellent photography, clear sound, tremendous acting and a beautiful story make this an honest and sincere film.

New Movies Due

Entertaining films soon arriving in Baltimore are: "Mediterranean Voyage," a documentary on the beauty of Mediterranean Europe; "Goldfinger," the new and (I expect) the best of the James Bond thrillers; "The Girl with the Green Eyes," a most unusual love story.

The Readers' Right

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate those responsible for the Loyola selections in "Who's Who."

Obviously those selected have good academic records. Their college gives them a reward for their accomplishments.

But what became of the qualifications; leadership, campus activities, and service to the college?

Isn't it odd that the newspaper Editor-in-Chief and Managing Editor were omitted? And where was the editor of the Yearbook, and IRC, History Academy, CCD, and Gray heads?

Who can doubt their service to the college, their leadership, their campus activities?

Why should two-thirds of the senior class be sacrificed to the mighty deity of grades?

Who are these "Who's Who" of Loyola? Better yet, who cares? Jim Griffin

WHO'S WHO?

WHAT'S MY NAME?

Name The Greyhound

By John Cantalupo

The drive to name the Loyola college mascot began on November 16 and will continue through November 25.

Sophomore Dick Friedel and Junior Stan Middleton are in charge of the drive, sponsored by the Green and Grey Club.

The purpose of the campaign is to accumulate canned goods and pipe tobacco for the Little Sisters of the Poor. Each of these articles contributed entitles the donating student to one entry.

The winner will receive a free ticket to the Christmas Dance, held every year by the Green and Grey. This year the dance will be held on Monday, December 28.

The hound appears at all the basketball contests here at Loyola and at the important away games. He is always around to boost spirit when the score runs against the Loyola cagers, and to cheer them on to victory.

The Green and Grey Club says that it is time that we pay the tribute of a name to a long unappreciated member of the Loyola community, the hound.

There will be appropriate cartoons in the lobby of the Student Center for donations and entries.

Clothing Drive

While the "Name the Greyhound" contest is taking place, the traditional Thanksgiving drive for clothing, in conjunction with the Bishop's Relief Fund, also will be held in the Student Center lobby.

All students are urged by the Green and Grey Club to donate whatever articles of spare clothing can be gathered, from home or locker.

SUPERVISERS . . . Vince Houber and Sgt. Billiot make sure the ROTC maneuvers Wednesday afternoon didn't cause anyone to die.

For the Elite Folk Festival By Blue-dog

By Bob Kujawa

The Blue Dog Cafewill sponsor its second annual black-tie folk festival on Friday, December 4, at theoucher College Auditorium.

In addition to George Stevens, the festival will feature Don Leace, who is currently one of the most popular folk singers in the Baltimore-Washington area. Also performing will be David, Carmen, della Rosa and Brooks, a local group that substituted for a late Josh White at a recent Towson State College concert, and was called back on the stage for three encores. All tickets for the single show at 8:30 p.m. are two dollars and are being sold on a first come best seated basis. They are on sale at the Blue Dog and the Modern Music House or may be obtained by contacting Linda Urse or Judy Clay at Baldwin Hall,oucher College. Further information may be had by calling 824-300. Tom Paxton will be appearing at the Foghorn Coffee House until November 28. More noted as a writer of folk ballads and protest songs than as a performer, Paxton's material has been used extensively by many of the top folk groups, including the Chad Mitchell Trio.

Josh White will return to Baltimore next month when he moves into the Foghorn for the week of December 14.

The lecture scheduled to be given by Brother Antoninus next Tuesday is being highly recommended by all those who are familiar with his works. The man is evidently an accomplished and dynamic speaker, and this fact alone should insure its being enjoyed even by those who have only a passing interest in poetry. Also, the lecture could do much towards dispelling the image of a cleric-poet as either a writer of doctrinal verse or a Fr. Feeney-type whose poems are covered over in grammar school textbooks.

Faculty vs. Council

Since the beginning of Time (Loyola's Time, that is), a rivalry has existed between students and faculty. On the evening of December 1, at 7 P.M. this pseudo-hostility will finally meet its termination, theoretically at least. The students, represented by the Student Council and the A.S.O., have challenged the faculty, represented by exponents of various fields of academic endeavor, to shoot it out on the plane of honor.

To insure the veracity of the proceedings, the Seniors will act as referees.

These faculty members are invited and we are anxiously awaiting their reply.

By John White

The Sophomore Class has finally gotten its family.

Last year at a class meeting, the proposal was made to use a portion of the class funds for some civic service. The majority of the voters were in favor of sending the money to the "Save The Children Federation."

At the time, however, the class lacked the $150 needed for a sponsorship. But due to the financial success of the Freshman Welcome Dance, sponsored this fall by the Sophomores, plans have gone ahead.

The plan consists of two objectives: (1) to give counsel and financial assistance to a family so that it can work out a plan to increase its income and (2) to encourage all the families in the community to work together on self-help projects which meet the felt needs of the community and which will raise the living standard and improve conditions in the community, thus providing greater opportunities for the children.

The program states that correspondence with the family is optional. Letters to and from them are translated by the Field Office.

The class expects information on the chosen, family and community within two or three days. All correspondence will be revised at class meetings.

Anyone desiring further information may contact John White.

Resignations Bring Turnover

A recent barrage of resignations has caused a rapid turnover in the GREYHOUND staff. For varying reasons a number of "key" staff members have asked to be replaced.

Dave Schroeder, the Managing Editor was forced to resign because of the demands on his time as Editor of the Yearbook.

The Co-News Editor Bob Santoni asked to be replaced after taking on the added responsibility of marriage.

Dick Higdon, the Co-Features Editor turned in his resignation to the newspaper at the same time he resigned from the Student Council. In both cases the resignations were meant as protests.

Sports Editor, Bernie Vondersmith resigned due to outside work conflicts and graduate school applications.

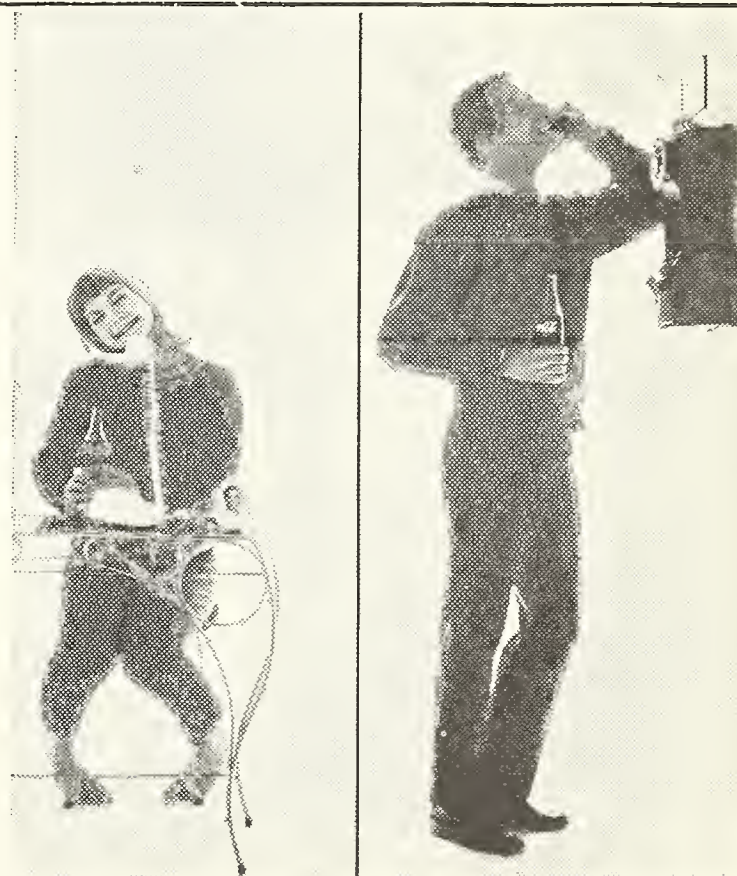

Copy Editor Charlie Cooper asked for a replacement after learning of outside conflicts in work and studies.

On Thursday, November 12, 1964 Loyola College inaugurated her twenty-third president, The Very Reverend Joseph Anthony Sellinger, of the Society of Jesus.

In addition to this honor, Father Sellinger also received a Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa, from The Very Reverend Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Georgetown University.

In his address to those in attendance, Father Sellinger remarked:

"At the bottom of our consideration today is not Loyola College. Loyola College is a thing, composed of so many buildings. . . Nor is the bottom of the matter reached by adding to this a human teaching staff. It is reached only when we consider the young lives, the young men, who come to Loyola to be educated. Only when this level is reached is it possible to say rightly what education is and ought to be."

In addition to placing the student first among his many considerations as president, Father Sellinger commented:

"The honor of being president of an institution that so often agonized to preserve this succession is one I profoundly appreciate."

Basketball Opens Dec. 1

By John Sherwood

The Greyhounds of Loyola open their 1964-65 basketball season on Tuesday, December 1 with a game against Georgetown University on the Evergreen campus.

The tap off is scheduled for 8:45 p.m. Coach Doherty's charges will have had three pre-season scrimmages to prepare them for this opening game.

Nappy welcomes back nine lettermen from last year's team.

Once again captain Marty Maher, last year's high scorer with an average of 16.1 points per game, is expected to pace the Hounds. He will be assisted by fellow senior Bill Morris. At this date it is doubtful that Mike McCarty will be seeing action, because of a foot injury.

The senior trio will be backed up by juniors Tom Brown, Gerry Fromm, Charlie Lawrence, Bob Lister, Pete Ruane, and Larry Stevenson.

Joining the hounds will be five members of last year's frosh class. Among these is six foot five Ken McCabe, who is expected to make a difference for Loyola's difficulty in getting rebounds. Also joining the team are Bill Devaney, Bill Robustelli, and Joe Philipp.

Hounds win opening scrimmage

Friday night the Greyhounds opened their pre-season basketball schedule at the University of Delaware. The Hounds beat Delaware in a come-from-behind victory, 72-63.

At the end of the first half, the Hounds were losing by a score of 31-19. Roaring back in the second half, the Hounds outscored the Blue Hens 53-32, for a final 72-63 win.

High scorers in the game were Ken McCabe, Tom O'Hara, and Bill Morris with 15, 17, and 19 points respectively. Fine rebounding on the boards by Ken McCabe, Bill Morris, and Larry Stevenson provided much of the fire in the second half.

The victory was due in large measure to a fine press put on Delaware at the twelve minute mark of the second half.

Natators Begin Dec. 12

By Dan Whalen

On Tuesday, December 1, the Hound natators will scrimmage Shepherd College in West Virginia.

Since 1955, the Hounds have swum against Shepherd, amassing an 8-1 record in the competition.

It is somewhat ironic that Shepherd is in its own conference, Champion for 1963-64, although they succumbed to the Hounds.

Shepherd's strong points include two good backstrokers, Vance and Kin Keab, as well as a good free-style relay team, which has posted times well under four minutes.

The scrimmage should provide a victory for the Hounds.

The official opening against Delaware on the twelfth of December will find the Hounds traveling to the University.

Delaware is the Team-To-Beat!

A time comparison reveals that the Hounds, and U. of Del. post equal times; this year Delaware may have the advantage since the meet will be held in their home pool. Delaware also has some new freshmen who could prove to be a threat.

Assessing the teams' progress, coach Tim Pierce notes more spirit than in the past five years. With regard to the conditioning program, it can also be noted that the Hounds are swimming about 1.5 miles a day, which is four times more than what the team swam its peak last year. No complaints have been registered and no seems to be cracking under pressure.

The Delaware-Loyola meet should set the pace for the season.
